PROGRAM

The speaker of the month, Loretta Hall, was introduced. Loretta is a Space Ambassador of the National Space Society and has written a book on New Mexico women's contribution to space travel. She presented a fascinating talk with vivid and fact-filled examples on many women who advanced space travel from and in New Mexico. She chronicled the origin of New Mexico space activities from Mr. Goddard's arrival in the 1930s to Wally Funk's space trip last month. This is a fascinating and illuminating story through and through. No state has such a long and illustrious history in support of the US space programs than New Mexico. She provides the details of space testing, establishment of military and commercial space launch sites, and the long list of New Mexico women who volunteered, were accepted and moved forward US space research and missions. The members were very involved in her talk and asked many questions. Many comments showed the members were proud of the achievements, but previously did not understand the breadth of New Mexico's contributions.
